Marcelo Kaihara

followed «venture challenge», which took place between September and December 2010 at EPFL in Lausanne.

“venturelab”, a national program of CTI agency for the promotion of innovation in collaboration with the Swiss Institutes of Technology, Universities, and Universities of Applied Sciences, proposes tailor-made training modules to help promote new innovative businesses and teach students about entrepreneurship.

The «venture challenge» course is aimed at undergraduates, doctoral candidates, postdocs, members of Staff at EPFL, Universities and Universities of applied Sciences (incl. research institutes) in Switzerland who are considering the formation of, or cooperation in, a start-up as a serious career option. Its 14 modules cover the basic aspects to get underway with a start-up project. It is concluded by an oral and written examination. The detailed content is available in the «venture challenge Syllabus ». It is organized in partnership between “venturelab” and EPFL “College of Management of Technology” (CDM).
